Second International Conference in Sofia

The second international WIT conference "Supply of social services and demand of social support: a challenge for Europe" launched in Sofia on October 13 2014 (Monday) with a welcome speech by Lyubomir Grancharov (CEO of the National Development Agency – Bulgaria). Mr. Grancharov introduced the audience with the work of NDA and briefly summarised the state of social services in Bulgaria, the slow flowing and spinning process of deinstitutionalisation and decentralisation, which our country is facing.

After the introduction of Mr. Grancharov, Mrs. Germana di Falco (Province of Milan) presented to the Bulgarian audience the project output, an advanced snapshot of the WIT geographical information system. The WIT GIS has been conceived as an infographic system able to identify some of the European sources supporting the upgrading of skills for European social services professionals, with a particular focus on the 4 partners countries (Italy, Bulgaria, Germany and Lithuania).

Additionally, thanks to the easy to read data provided, the informatic system will help realizing a better match between supply of social services and demand of social support, supporting social work professionals (i.e. graduated or having different levels of professional education) to a better understanding of territorial instruments at their disposal. More than 180 cards have been collected, reporting description of the main activities carried out by the recognized "places" for the development of formal, informal and not formal skills to help the enhancement of the social work profession.

Moreover Mrs. di Falco drew attention to the challenges which Europe faces in the area of social services.

The conference continued with Assoc. Professor Vaska Stancheva-Popkostadinova (MD, MPsy, PhD, South-West University – Bulgaria). The topic of her presentation was the status of the labour market in the field of social services in Bulgaria. Special attention was paid to:

- Social services for children;
- Social services for elderly;
- Problems and perspectives for improving the quality of social services in Bulgaria;
- Remuneration of social workers in the country;

At the end of her extensive and very interesting presentation, Assoc. Professor Stancheva familiarized the audience with some of the best practices implemented in the country in the recent years.

After Ms. Stancheva the topic for the status of the labour market in field of social services was also analysed by our partners from Italy, Germany and Lithuania. Andrea Metzner (representative of the Alice Salomon University of Applied Sciences), Laimutė Žalimienė (Department of Social work Vilnius University) and Germana di Falco (Province of Milan) introduced the audience with:

- Organisational changes in the social sphere in each country;
- The role of the organisations in the public and private sector;
- Different types of social workers, educational differences in the social services area, working conditions, salaries and wages in each country and the problems in the social area as well.

3rd Seminar in Sofia

The afternoon was dedicated to the 3rd international seminar "Introduction to pioneering social innovation devices and improvement of information systems on skills needs and jobs opportunities".

Germana Di Falco (on behalf of Province of Milan, Italy) started the seminar underlying the achievement by the project output, conceived as an effective tool to help the decision makers and key actors on the field to read data in a comprehensive manner and to stimulate debate on the development of new skills for 21th century social service professionals.

It has been then the turn of Mrs Silvia Boyanova from Center for Interethnic Dialog and Tolerance "Amalipe". The topic she discussed was "Identification of existing networks, partnerships and systems of cooperation".

She began with a short presentation of the organization and also presented all the work that "Amelipe" does all over the country. Ms. Boyanova paid particular attention to one of the international projects developed by "Amelipe" as a part of international partnership, namely "A step forward - empowering young people and women from the local Roma communities." The project is implemented through the joint participation of Bulgaria, Spain, Hungary and Romania.

After a short coffee break, the word was given to Marin Baychev from the Agency for Social Assistance (ASA). Mr. Baychev presented to the audience, the structure and functions of the agency, as well as brief historical data about its existence. The management and control of social services were presented at local and regional level, as well as some projects carried out by the agency. The presentation prompted the first serious discussions in the room. Representatives of various non-governmental organizations present at the event, started raining Mr. Baychev with the various issues related to the work of the ASA.

The conclusion of the third international seminar was given by as. Temenuzhka Malcheva from Sofia University "St. Kliment Ohridski ". The subject of her presentation was on "Technologies for assistance for children with special needs." Mrs. Malcheva presented in intriguing way a specialized software environment for teaching children with cerebral palsy. Through this specialized software, children with special needs have the opportunity to learn how to use and handle a computer in a form of a play.

Skills need and job opportunities

3rd and 4th Workshops

On October 14th, started the third workshop of the project "WIT" titled "Improvement of information systems on skills needs and jobs opportunities, career guidance for social labour market entrance".

Assoc. Professor Vaska Stancheva-Popkostadinova started with a presentation about the training and career development of professionals in the social services in Bulgaria. She reviewed the universities which offer programs for social studies and graduate programs. She presented various forms of continuing education, and all the challenges that are related to teaching social activities.

Immediately after her a representative of the public sector took the floor. Mrs. Tony Nikolova from the Agency for people with disabilities. Mrs. Nikolova did a thorough and complete presentation of the Agency for people with Disabilities, focusing particularly on the needs of the labor market for social services at regional and national level.

Mr. Raichin Rachev spoke about the work of "Future 21st century" foundation and presented to the audience an online platform for language training, information technologies and vocational training.

After a short break the fourth workshop has begun, titled "Pioneering Social Innovation devices enabling Public-Private Partnerships' in social services management."

Due to the high interest of representatives of various NGO organizations who wanted to take part in the workshop and present the work of their organizations, the original schedule of the fourth workshop was rearranged.

Particularly interesting was the theme that Mrs. Nelly Kiriakova (representative of the "Eurointegration" association) presented to the audience, namely "Challenges faced by the volunteers and the non-profit sector organizations for social work". Mrs. Kiriakova familiarized the audience with the problems associated with insufficient municipal funding, especially in larger cities where many needs are presented. She highlighted the following issues:

- The shortage of qualified and motivated staff;
- Lack of a clear assessment of the needs for social services by the respective populations;
- Lack of regulated quality standards for various social services;
- Other important aspects related to the work of NGOs in the country

This created a vigorous discussion and debate between public and private sectors in the hall.

Mrs. Kapka Panaiotova, representative of the "Center for Independent Living" was one of those participants. With her sincerity she immediately captivated the audience and revealed to everyone in the room the hurtful daily world of the people with disabilities. She spoke about their desire to have a choice and to be able to live independently and receive the necessary support in order to achieve this. Mrs. Panaiotova also stressed that the independent living of people with disabilities is possible when they have a choice, have equal rights and can fully participate in all aspects of the social life.

Association "Business Agency" was presented by Borislava Ivanova. She introduced to the audience the work of the Association, its goals and also presented some of the major projects which are developed by the association.

Another representative from the public sector, Evtim Evtimov (Association of the social service providers) participated in the workshop. He introduced a project "Telekear" which is currently developed by the association. Mr. Evtimov presented the services they provide to people with disabilities (social assistant, domestic worker, home attendant services, etc.) He also familiarized the audience with the development of methodological materials for support of social service providers and trainings:

- NGOs;
- State institutions;
- Municipal administration;

The last participant for the day was Anna Lyubenova representative of the "Initiative for Health" foundation. Some of the main activities of the Foundation presented by Ms. Lyubenova were field work for HIV prevention and reduction of health harms among drug users in Sofia, as well as the foundation's work with the Roma communities and special programs for prevention of HIV and tuberculosis among them.

Extremely interesting and varied topics were discussed throughout the day. The event revealed that there is a ground for new partnerships as well as willingness of the organizations that are part of the social services sector in Bulgaria to develop and enhance their activity.

WIT

WHITE BOOK

Within the project WIT, co-funded by the European Program Progress 2007- 2013, partners from Italy, Lithuania, Germany and Bulgaria have started and widened a reflection on their national welfare systems, existing social professions, consolidated and emerging policies and professionals' skills, in the field of welfare and healthcare in the four European countries.

This White Book is meant to give an overview on all the main project's results and findings, according to a shared vision of the three thematic pillars leading the analysis of the WIT partners, on the upgrading of social work professionals' skills.

The first section is dedicated to deepen the identity, qualities and roles of social work professionals; it shows the main achievements disclosed by project's events and undertaken activities passing through social work professionals' identity, their personal qualities, and their key role in the policy making process. A further focus has been dedicated to social workers as disregarded professionals and their empowering skills with reference to different kinds of already existing and emerging vulnerable groups (i.e. abandoned children, traumatized boys, elderly, people encountering different kinds of discrimination, women experiencing gender violence or human trafficking, people recovering from mental diseases, young disabled). The second thematic section refers to emerging skills, with an intent to examine potentialities of blending skills (new, renewed and/or borrowed from other sectors) applied to new social needs. Pressure for highly specialised education and specific target groups and/or specific methods are more and more relevant for these professionals. At the same time, generic transversal competences and skills will facilitate cooperation between different profiles, providing a shared ground of intervention. The third section has finally been oriented to reflect on the theme of innovative schemes of training, especially identifying new inspiring training models, already experienced in the partners countries. They in particular refer to vocational training models that have into mind transversal social services professionals, they could be for example professionals working for "social purposes", but also in not conventional "social contexts". An interesting contribution from the Province of Milan has been on these two themes: "An innovative model of training experienced on the complex issue of autism" and "Conducting support groups and/or mutual help aimed at caregivers of the elderly and not only ". Each section has been enriched with thematic boxes highlighting specific contributions from the WIT partners, especially focusing on national elements arisen during the WIT project events' debate.

WIT activities, main findings and results are intended to support policy makers decisions about education and training, directed to develop new skills for social work professionals dealing with vulnerable groups and thus to improve the quality of services provided to citizens, also by strengthening private-public collaborations. A strong engage, in this sense, has been undertaken by WIT partners to sustain training and development institutions, universities and research centres of the targeted regions. Additionally, WIT aims to support innovation in the organizational models and to minimize information deficits on current and emerging social sector professionals' skills requirements.

WIT Closing Conference and 5th Workshop

WIT closing Conference and 5th Workshop, Milan, 4-5 December 2014

Within the European Union Programme for Employment and Social Solidarity - PROGRESS (2007-2013), the Province of Milan, Welfare sector, Third sector and Support for disability and fragility, Training Service will organise the final project conference, that will be held in Milan (4th of December 2014).

The aim of the closing event is to debate crucial issues of developing new skills for professionals of the social welfare and of social innovation at a local, national and European level, within the EU Programme Progress. WIT Partners and experts are invited to debate and exchange their ideas during the final conference and the final thematic workshop.

Also within the Italian Council of the Union Presidency semester, the event will be the occasion to disseminate to the widest audience the WIT project results and main findings. The final conference will convene representatives of the project partners, and will be attended by programme representatives, social policy makers, key actors from no profit sector, training sector, public administrations, other experts and civil society interested in the goal of the WIT project: "identifying new competencies for a new welfare". The day after moreover the Province will host the 5th project Workshop on the Enhancement of multi-skilling profiles in a more inclusive welfare".
